AUTO DRIVERS, HEEDLESS OR IGNORANT, INCREASE NUMBER OF ACCIDENTS HERE

More Accidents This Year Than Ever Before in Kingston, Which Fact Leads Chief of Police J. Allan Wood to Talk of Traffic Conditions and Suggest a Remedy.

Every year sees a greatly increased number of automobiles in use on Kingston's streets, and this year there have been more auto accidents reported in the city than ever before. Hardly a day passes when one or more auto collisions are not reported at police headquarters.

Anyone who uses the streets daily observes many cases of reckless disregard for the rights of others, and it seems remarkable that the increase in auto accidents is not even larger. Many drivers persist in the belief that the main streets of the city are meant for speeding and drive by street intersections at a speed far exceeding the traffic ordinance.

There are many drivers who believe and state that they can stop their car within its own length when driving at a rate of speed exceeding twenty miles an hour, but there has not been an auto accident this year where a driver has been able to do it.

Traffic accidents have increased at such a rate so far this season that a Freeman reporter took the matter up with Chief of Police J. Allan Wood to get his views on the subject. In talking over traffic conditions in Kingston the chief said:

The alarming increase of accidents in Kingston up to the present time has caused the police department to believe that traffic rules and regulations are not being observed by drivers of automobiles as much as they should be for the safety of the general public.

More Speeding Than Ever.

The tendency to drive faster than traffic conditions permit with safety is more noticeable than in former years. A large number of inexperienced drivers have appeared this spring, and it is urged that they particularly study a few minor rules of driving which would be of benefit not only to themselves but to others using the streets.

Should Use Hand Signals.

It has been found that a closer application of signals and their observance minimizes the chances of accidents. The ordinary signals by use of the hand seemed to the police to be the most effective method of signaling.

The system of hand signals advocated by Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Harris, of the New York city police department, answers every requirement for the driver of a motor vehicle. This system of hand signals comprises four signals by using the left hand and are as follows:

When desiring to turn to the left extend the left hand and point in the direction in which you desire to drive your vehicle. Before executing the signal it is well that you look to the rear to see how close traffic is to you. If traffic is quite close, blow your horn to attract the attention of other traffic and then indicate the direction you wish to turn.

When desiring to turn to the right into an intersecting street, sound your horn for the purpose of notifying traffic in the rear that you are about to change direction, and signal with left hand from left to right, indicating you are about to turn to the right. By sounding your horn you also notify pedestrians who are about to use the cross walks at the intersection that a vehicle is about to cross.

The third signal is used for turning in any street. This is executed with the left hand by a wave of the hand from right to left, but this should never be used except after sounding your horn notifying traffic that you are about to change direction.

The best place to turn around in any street is at a street intersection. A turn in any other part of the street, unless the street is very wide, is liable to obstruct traffic.

Signal When Slowing Down.

The fourth signal and an important one is the use of the hand when slowing down or stopping your car. Extend the left hand directly outward with the palm to the rear which is an indication that you are about to slow down or stop. Execute this signal in time to give traffic in the rear a chance to slow down and thus avoid a rear end collision.

Look to the Right.

The highway traffic law of the state gives vehicles approaching from your right the right of way to enter or cross traffic from an intersecting street.

A tendency to disregard this rule is quite prevalent in Kingston.

It is unjust to persons desiring to enter or cross traffic at a street intersection to hold them there when their rights are that they can enter traffic as soon as they are at the street intersection.

Should Blow Horns More.

Automobilists using the main thoroughfares should indicate by blowing their horn their approach to any street intersection and they should have their car under control at all times while approaching and crossing a street intersection.

If this rule is observed the number of accidents in Kingston will be lessened.

Look to Your Brakes.

Look well to your brakes. It is reported daily in police headquarters that brakes are not being attended to. The brake is one of the most important parts of a car.

The law requires that the brakes be inspected daily, and if found they do not perform properly they should be relined and adjusted. A good brake will prevent a collision many times and may save a life, or prevent serious injury to some person.

New Headlight Law.

With the new headlight law effective May 1, it is urged that all owners of cars in Kingston comply with the provisions of the law not only by securing the proper lens advocated by the law but also to adjust the headlights even though they have the proper lens so that the beam of light complies with the provisions of the law.

It is possible under the headlight law to have legal lens and still violate the law.

It is suggested that you stop at your garage and have them look over your lights to see if the light is the proper distance from the ground and that the lamps are tipped so that the rays of light extend so as to comply with the provisions of the law.

All garage dealers have received instructions from the state department relative to his, and many have already established a ready means to determine whether or not the lights of the auto comply with the law.

Cooperate With Police.

In the regulation of traffic the police department desires that all officers treat the public in a courteous manner. The police department realizes that it is the servant of the people and that it is serving them as they have willed when it enforces the laws that have been passed by our legislative bodies.

The police department desires to execute this service in an effective manner, but it must have at all time the cooperation of he general public in order to carry out its aims.

What might sometimes appear to be over-zealousness and brusqueness on the part of a police officer is in reality only his anxiety to carry out the orders of his superiors as closely as possible and apply them to conditions that present themselves.

Policemen are taught to be courteous, and I am sure that a little courtes by the public extended in return will help greatly. It is urged that the public observe and comply with signals given by the policemen.

If you observe an officer with the right hand extended which is a signal for you to stop, do not crowd the officer too closely. He is stopping you for some purpose and even though you do not see why the officer is stopping you, obey his command and give him a chance to accomplish his purpose.

Upon approaching a policeman doing traffic duty do not be afraid to sound your horn to notify him of your approach, and indicate to him the direction you wish to take.

At the time you sound your horn slow down and approach the officer cautiously. If then you have to change direction by order of the officer you will do so with a greater degree of safety than if you had approached at a fast rate of speed.

What Some Drivers Do.

A good plan which is carried out by many experienced drivers in Kingston is that on approaching a pedestrian or street intersection to shut off the power and coast applying the brake slightly to see if it is in operation. Your car will then be absolutely under control and you can do anything that may prove necessary.

A Few Don'ts.

The following are a few suggestions:

Don't speed on any public street in the city. Traffic conditions have reached such proportions that it is unsafe.

Don't turn corners at a rate of speed of more than four miles per hour and apply your brake before trying to turn the corner.

Don't leave your car without applying the emergency brake, and be sure that it is in working condition at all times.

Don't turn to the left heedlessly without regard to traffic in your rear.

Don't stop in the middle of the street if there is room to the right.

Don't run with one headlight and no tail light lit.

Be sure and clean your number plates.

If these suggestions are followed out the street vehicle accidents in Kingston will be reduced greatly, and the results of the summer traffic in the fall will be considerably more satisfactory than if present conditions are allowed to go on.

PAINTERS START FIRE; WILTWYCKS PUT IT OUT

A still alarm of fire called out the members of Wiltwyck Hose Company this morning. A blow torch being used by painters at 105 Pearl street had set fire to the building. The fire was quickly extinguished without damage.

NEW WEST PARK CROSSING PLAN

Railroad Offers Proposal for Bridge to Cost $148,000, Less Than State's Plan—County and Commission Oppose.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, April 28.—The New York Central Railroad, as lessee, yesterday presented at the hearing before the Public Service Commission an alternative plan for the proposed overcrossing at the West Shore tracks of the state highway at West Park, near Esopus, Ulster county.

The plan presented called for a bridge to span the entire railroad right of way, the estimated cost of which was $148,000, not taking into consideration the question of land damages. The estimated cost of the plan was below the estimated cost under one presented by the State Highway Commission.

The Highway Commission objected to the plan filed because of the curve of the approaches and the grade on the south approach, and County Attorney Eckert of Ulster county also objected. The hearing was postponed until May 25. A conference will follow between the railroad and the state authorities to agree, if possible, upon a compromise plan which will be considered at the next hearing.

BLAZING CROSS ON WILBUR HILL

Has Kingston some would-be practical jokers, or is there a branch of the Ku Klux Klan organized here?

The majority of residents lean to the first theory.

Friday evening about 10 o'clock residents on the downtown streets when they glanced in the direction of Wilbur saw a flaming cross on the hill overlooking that hamlet.

The cross was similar to that erected on the sand bank at South Rondout earlier in the week.

The only difference was that no hooded and gowned figures were seen prancing around the Wilbur hill cross.

STEAMER RAN ON SAUGERTIES DOCK

Friday afternoon while on the way down the Hudson river the steamer Jacob H. Tremper of the Central Hudson line ran on the dock at Saugerties damaging the shed on the dock and the hull of the vessel. An attempt to pull the steamer loose under her own power was unsuccessful and the tug Adams of the Cornell Steamboat Company hauled her clear. The Tremper was brought to Rondout creek and today it was found that her hull was leaking as a result of the collision and she was taken to the Hiltebrant shipyard at Connelly where she was hauled out on dry dock for repairs. At the Central Hudson office here it was stated today that repairs would be completed and the steamer leave here for Albany Tuesday morning.

Bishop Shipman At St. John's.

On Sunday, April 29, Suffragan Bishop Herbert Shipman of the diocese of Eastern New York will visit St. John's Church on Wall street. Bishop Shipman will be at St. John's for both the early celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 o'clock and to administer the rite of confirmation at 10:45 o'clock, when the bishop will also be the preacher. The public is cordially invited.

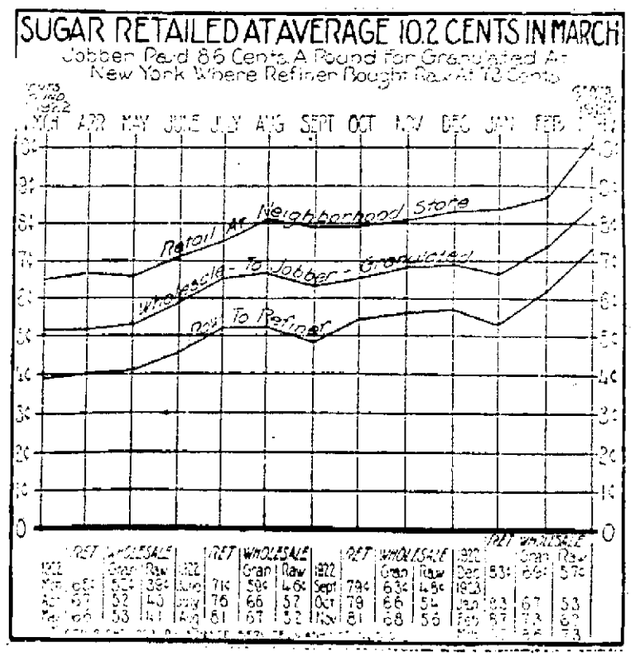
BUSINESS DAY by DAY as the Government sees it

PREPARED BY RALPH F. COUCH



CAPT. ARMITAGE OUTDOES COUE

One Man Gives One of Best Entertainments at High School That Has Been Seen Here In Long Time—Big Audience Gratifies Athletic Association.

If "A merry heart doeth good like medicine," then Captain Frank Guy Armitage, Dickensian entertainer who presented "The Laughter Barrage" at the Kingston High School auditorium Friday evening, had Dr. Coue completely outdistanced. Because of interest in the Athletic Association of the high school, and partly because some people knew personally of Captain Armitage, there was a very large audience at the high school to greet this cultured gentleman who had brought laughter and courage to many a lad in service during the world war, and whose splendid appreciation of the stuff of which the men were made was deep and lasting.

Mr. Hall, head of the Boys' Work Department of the Y. M. C. A., introduced Captain Armitage, a former college mate of Mr. Hall's, whom Mr. Hall had happily initiated into the ways of New England, for Captain Armitage comes from Old England.

Captain Armitage said that he had three reasons for being particularly happy to be in Kingston to address an audience here. Coming as he did from an old historic city in England, York, which is still surrounded by the wall built by the Romans, he was very glad to visit the old, historic American city of Kingston, New York. The second and most potent reason was that it was in this city that his dearest friend was born, Creighton Story, whom many in the audience remembered well. Captain Armitage said that in all his service overseas he never met a finer nor more gallant gentleman than Creighton Story, who, serving with the Canadian troops, gave his life for the Great Cause. And finally it was a pleasure to the speaker to meet again in Kingston some of his former college mates.

Captain Armitage opened his program with "Pianolog," "Opera as Is," one of the most screamingly funny things ever seen and heard in Kingston, with a grain of truth at the bottom that but made it the funnier.

His opera cast consisted of three little lads and two little girls chosen from the audience, who, when bewigged and trained by the versatile gentleman represented the hero, the villain and the manager, while the girls were the heroine and her rival. The scenery was provided to represent the Hudson River, a portion of which had been emptied into a pail and occupied a conspicuous place on the platform until carried off by the diminutive villain. Probably very little real grand opera ever had such a reception of laughter and continued applause as did Captain Armitage's performance.

Then followed a bit of magic cleverly put over, "The Silver Ball," a trick used again and again by the magician to enliven the tedium of the trenches for soldier lads in the late war.

Next, the speaker took his audience to the library where, donning appropriate costume, he gave an intensely realistic presentation of "Grandfather Smallweed," from Dickens's "Bleak House."

The first half of the program closed with some very clever ventriloquism, in which "Johnny philosophised," greatly to the amusement of all, but especially of the most youthful part of the audience.

Part two of the program opened with the touching "pome" "The Hirsute Appendage," which will long be remembered. Another trip to the library resulted in the return of Uriah Heep, straight out of Dickens's David Copperfield, unctuous, oily, hypocritical and "humble."

Then in memory of Creighton Story, Captain Armitage told of many an incident of his war experience in which the lads, many of them no older than the youths in the audience, showed an undaunted courage and disregard of agonizing suffering that proved the true spirit of real heroism to have been vital in the hearts of the men who fought. No one who heard the speaker tell of these incidents will ever forget them or ever want to.

One of the pieces of magic, thought out by Captain Armitage during a frightful bombing in London, was called "Applied Politics; the Marvelous War Picture," in which again the lads in the audience were the magician's accomplices. With much fierceness the speaker told of the bitter feeling of the Canadians toward Roosevelt because he had not been born a Canadian, for they counted him one of the greatest men of history.

The program, which was filled every minute with fun or pathos or entertainment, all of the most refined character such as could be given only by a man of rare culture, a man well born, was brought to an all too quick close with an impersonage of Sydney Carton in Dickens's Tale of Two Cities, that was tremendously impressive.

And yet that was not quite the close, for after the tumultuous applause Captain Armitage said that he felt that being in the home city of a great, is as yet undecognized poet, one whom the future might place in the rank of its greatest, he should give a short but most impressive poem by that author. It was a poem in three verses on "Napoleon's Farewell to his Troops," by the gifted author, Mr. Buley. It was—given with intense and vivid dramatic action—"Farewell! Farewell!! Farewell!!!" and it was also Captain Armitage's farewell to Kingston for this time.

After Hearing Citizens Who Want Veteran Teachers' Pay Increased, Parliamentary Law is Invoked to Prevent Test Vote of Board.

The board of education Friday night decided that its previous investigation of the question of teachers' salaries had been sufficiently comprehensive to justify a continuation of the present salary schedule for Kingston city teachers, and after listening to a representative each of the Rotary Club, the Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis Club, the Federated Parent-Teachers' Association, the Federation of Women's Clubs and President Harry H. Flemming, the board declined to change its action of a month ago by which teachers were reengaged for the ensuing year in accordance with the schedule of annual increases which has been in effect since it was proposed by the teachers in 1921.

The Delegation Present.

The delegation present at Friday night's meeting, representing the organizations mentioned, was composed of the Rev. Dr. F. B. Seeley, Secretary Louis S. Coe of the Chamber of Commerce, Dr. Frank L. Eastman, Vincent A. Gorman, Max L. Reben, Schuyler C. Schultz, President Rudolph C. Dittus of the common council, Principal Frank L. Meagher of School No. 5, William Dugan, John Mack, E. Everett Fossenden, Floyd W. Powell, Carlton S. Preston, Frank P. Messinger, Mrs. Frederick Snyder, Mrs. W. J. Whiston, Mrs. Harry Dederick, Mrs. Alfred D. Van Buren, Mrs. George F. Rice and Mrs. Harry P. Van Wagenen.

There were no absentees among the members of the board of education.

The regular order of business was suspended in order to give the visitors opportunity to be heard.

Not Dictating, Says Seeley.

The Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley, the first speaker, said he was present by unanimous request of the Kingston Rotary Club to appeal to the board for an increase in the salaries of teachers. He realized he laid himself open to the charge of presumption, almost of impudence, in seeming to dictate to this board what it should do. He would not have the board feel that he believed the teachers' committee or the board itself had failed to act conscientiously or in a manner which they believed to be absolutely just; nor was he blind to the fact that the teachers' committee had spent a great deal of time in studying the schedule of teachers' salaries in other cities and had access to facts and figures with which he nor the public were familiar.

He knew it was ungracious, almost discourteous, in seeking to criticise a board of public servants who had shown themselves to be faithful in performing the duties committed to their care, and he believed the board was desirous of doing full justice to the teachers.

Having said that, the board might ask why he was present. Speaking for the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, he believed it was the preponderating opinion of the public that the teachers of this city are entitled to a larger salary than they are now receiving and will receive under the contracts made a month ago; that teachers who had seen fifteen years' service in the city schools were entitled to the maximum salary provided by the Lockwood bill, and that seventy-five per cent of the people would like to see the minimum wage scale increased, and that everyone in the city would like to see the best superintendent of schools in the state of New York, who was personified in Superintendent Michael, receive compensation commensurate with his worth, moral and intellectual.

The maximum salary of the elementary teachers in Kingston, said Dr. Seeley, was $1,150. It had been pointed out that there had been a gradual increase of a little more than 61 per cent since 1911, but such increase was not commensurate with the increase in the cost of living as regards food, shelter and clothing during that time.

The strength and value of service of the public schools was dependent on the character of the teachers. We are living in a trying and momentous time, when Bolshevism and atheism are working their way in the public schools, and it is important at such times that the character of the teachers should be of the highest. The pay offered was not such as to call the college or university graduate to the teaching profession. He believed this was a serious condition and it was of the utmost importance to have teachers of the highest character who could combine contentment with their work, because contentment adds to their greatest efficiency.

As a taxpayer, said Dr. Seeley, he knew there were times when taxes seem burdensome, but he never had heard one word of criticism of the school budget as being extravagant. On the contrary, the board uniformly had shown a desire to furnish the children with the best obtainable commensurate with a proper spirit of economy, and he believed the members of the board were striving to carry out what they considered were the best interests of the taxpayers. But notwithstanding such an opinion by the board, he believed the taxpayers of the city were overwhelmingly in favor of seeing the fifty-eight teachers who would be affected by the proposed increase receive at once the maximum increment to which they become entitled under the Lockwood bill. Because the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs believe in these things, they could not help but say them.

Chamber of Commerce Resolution.

Secretary Louis S. Coe of the Chamber of Commerce read a resolution adopted by the board of directors of that organization stating they believed the teachers were entitled to receive at once the maximum salary which was proposed under the Lockwood bill.

Federated P.-T. A. Endorsement.

Mrs. George F. Rice of the Federal Parent-Teacher Association, spoke briefly, saying her organization endorsed what had been said. A committee of the Federation had met with the teachers' committee some time ago and the views of the Federation had been fully explained at that time. Their views were still the same, and the facts then presented by the Federation to the teachers' committee had not been changed in any way.

Favored Increase From Beginning.

Mrs. Alfred D. Van Buren, who was called on by Mrs. Rice to speak of the attitude of the Federated Parent-Teachers' Association, said she had appeared before the teachers' committee some time ago and she desired to repeat what she had stated then, that it was impossible to pay in dollars and cents the city teachers who had given so much of their lives to the always-present young people of the city, but the least that could be done was to try to make payment.

Kingston today, said Mrs. Van Buren, has the finest body of men and women teachers to be found anywhere, and the fact that they had been reengaged year after year by the present board of education spoke in itself for their ability. Many of them had struggled under great handicaps but they had proved their ability and their high character, and it seemed almost beneath their dignity to be compelled to come and ask, not for an increase, but for that to which they were entitled.

Her own acquaintances was principally with the work accomplished by the women teachers of the city, and they proved themselves womanly in the highest sense. The teacher teaches even more than the parent, and if every teacher could give undivided attention to the children without the feeling that there were worries at home, they would do even better. She doubted if parents, even with their own children, could spend the entire day, day after day, for ten months of the year, from nine o'clock in the morning until three o'clock in the afternoon, and produce such good results in the making of good Americans as the individual teachers were doing. And the teachers were doing this not alone with one child but with many of them, for ten months, and then in the next year they performed the same wonderful work for another entirely different set of children. This work at its best was nerve racking, and the salaries of the teachers ought to be such that the teacher, like almost every other person, might get away during the summer months for a needed rest and vacation, returning to the work in the fall with renewed vigor.

Women's Federation Approves.

Mrs. Harry P. Van Wagenen spoke briefly on behalf of the executive board of the Federation of Women's Clubs, which long ago had been conscious of the value of the teacher, she said, because the teachers had done so much for Kingston year after year and still continued to mould the character of the men and women of the future.

Kiwanians Not "Butting-In."

Dr. Frank L. Eastman, representing the Kiwanis Club, seconded what had been said on behalf of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs by the Rev. Dr. Seeley. He believed Kingston had the best teachers obtainable and they were getting the best results, so that he was amazed when he learned that Kingston was paying a sub-standard wage to them. He did not wish the board to feel that the Kiwanis Club was "butting in," but only that the Kiwanis Club members believed the teachers should receive the full benefit to which they were entitled under the Lockwood bill.

President Flemming Replies.

President Harry H. Flemming of the board of education asked Vice-President Ernest W. Kearney to take the chair temporarily, and from the floor read a statement of the position taken by the board in regard to the teachers' request.

President Flemming's statement in full appears in full elsewhere in The Freeman.

"Misquoted," Says Seeley.

Dr. Seeley, in reply, said he had not read the report of what he had said before the Kiwanis Club, but he had made no such statement as that which was quoted in President Flemming's statement. He had not said that Kingston was at the foot of the list in the matter of teachers' wages. He appreciated the fact that the teachers' committee had given more study to the subject than anyone else, and the board had tried to act conscientiously, but that did not alter the fact that the teachers ought

MORE ZOO CREATURES

"I don't have to be good," said Silver King the Polar Bear, "for I am so handsome.

"I can be magnificently superior," he ended as he plunged into an icy bath which was his great joy.

"I'm beautiful, too," said Dolly Peacock, who was strutting about. "My keeper says that I haven't many brains, but that doesn't matter when I've so magnificent a tail. Truly tail is a word which does not half describe it.

"In the winter time I attend to my plumage and see that it is at its best.

"Sometimes, though, I have a great deal of trouble with it.

"You see we love to roost near the ground and sometimes when we are asleep in the winter time the snow falls on my beautiful, exquisite tail and when I get up I find I have to drag around a lot of snow as well as tail until I can get rid of it.

"I don't mean until I get rid of my tail, of course. I mean until I get rid of the snow which has fallen on my tail! My keeper thinks it is stupid of me to roost so near the ground in snowy weather, but then it is true, I'm not very sensible and I'm not very bright.

"I'm not a sociable bird. I don't care for others. No, I'm the kind that rather enjoys being alone in her beauty. I like to strut about in my own solitary splendor."

In the monkey house Gabong, the big ape, was amusing the children.

"The keeper likes me. I like him," Gabong was saying to himself.

"And the children like me. And I like them. So I'll amuse them."

Gabong had seen other monkeys turning somersaults and so he learned these tricks and the hair upon his head and upon his shoulders had worn off in many places because Gabong was so constantly turning somersaults to amuse those who always gathered about him.

He had always been famous for his long hair, but he said he'd rather be a popular fellow any day than think of his long hair, and if turning somersaults made him popular he certainly would turn them even if it meant the loss of hair.

"Oh, yes, it is more fun to be a good sort than to be a thing of beauty," Gabong said, and he meant it, too.

In yet another part of the zoo there was Amos, the pet woodchuck of one of the keepers.

He was the only pet woodchuck they had ever had, for woodchucks had never become friendly.

But Amos was different from any other.

Amos went all about the park, wherever he wanted to go, and every one knew he would never run away for he was far too happy.

He never let anyone know where he slept. That was his own little secret, but at all other times he was about, especially happy when with the keeper who had made a pet of him.

And in yet another part of the zoo the big African Elephant had just had his lovely soothing oil bath.

First of all he had had a splendid bath. Then he had been rubbed all over with oil. The keeper had put it on him with a big sponge and the keeper had had to climb up on a ladder in order to reach all parts of the elephant.

He couldn't get into a little tub and lie down and be bathed, no, not he!

Oh, he loved his bath and his oil rub but when it was all over he threw dust all over his body.

"That," he said to himself in elephant talk, "is the ideal way to have a bath and rub by finishing it off with a dust rub of my own making and after my own fashion.

"Then I feel really soothed and happy and contented. Some do not see why I put dust on after I have had my bath and my oil rub, but don't many people put on talcum powder after a bath in soap and water?

"Well, you'd think it was funny if I did that. So I don't. If I'm going to do anything funny I like to do something which gives me restful pleasure, yes that is what I like."

But the people thought it very strange to see the big elephant throwing dust all over himself after he had just had a bath and an oiling.

Battle is to a man what developing solution is to a photographic plate. It brings out what's already in him. It gives him nothing new.—Bernard Iddings Bell.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

Dishes that are economical, nourishing and at the same time attractive are the popular ones with the average housewife. Try this method of cooking soup meat.

Creole Soup Meat—Take an ordinary soup bone from the leg, rub pepper, salt and a little garlic into it and put it into an iron kettle with no water. Close tightly and place in the oven for four hours. At the end of that time the meat will drop from the bone and there will be a pint of juice and fat in the bottom of the kettle. Skim off the fat and add to the juice one chopped green pepper, half a can of tomatoes, one small onion, half a teaspoonful of cloves and half a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Cook the sauce about half an hour, thicken it a little and serve poured over the beef.

One of the essentials in any family is a small Scotch kettle such as used in our grandmothers' day for frying doughnuts. An iron cover should fit it tightly and meat or foods cooked in it will conserve all their flavor. The iron holds the heat, making the cooking very economical as to fuel.

Lamb Haricot—Cut into two-inch squares the meat from three pounds of the breast of mutton. Wipe clean before cutting, roll in seasoned flour. In the iron kettle put one pint of dried lima beans which have been soaked over night. Slice two small onions, then lay the meat over all. Cover and bake three hours.

New Orleans Pork and Cabbage—Buy two pounds of the shoulder of pork as lean as possible. Shred one head cabbage and place in the bottom of a well greased kettle. Season the cabbage with salt and pepper, adding one teaspoonful of mustard seeds, half a cupful of vinegar, and one tablespoonful of brown sugar. Put the pork on top, well floured and bake, well-covered, three hours. Serve with baked sweet potatoes.

Date Pudding—Wash and cut in pieces one package of dates. Add one quart of milk and cook in a double boiler until somewhat thickened, add a speck of salt and serve cold.

VERY FEW PITCHERS WERE AMBIDEXTROUS

Baseball History Records Three Twirlers Who Could Use Either Hand in Playing.

Followers of baseball ofttimes have heard about the type of hurler who could pitch a fast ball with either hand and make it curve.

However, few have been in action, and these freak hurlers are seldom seen in organized ball. Baseball history tells of a hurler named Owen Keenan who was with Youngstown, O., in 1885. Keenan could pitch equally well with either hand.

It was July 4, 1885, that this wonder hurled two games of ball against the New Castle team and won both. This double-action phenom worked his left arm in the first game and came back in the second contest with his good right.

The right whip had the best record, although, it is said, both of Keenan's attempts were high-class and he was one of the few ambidextrous chaps who was good.

The famous Larry Corcoran of the Chicago Nationals, in the early '80s was one of the great hurlers of that period. Larry's wonderful right arm went back on him in 1885. This almost broke his heart, for Larry wasn't old in years. It dawned upon him that he might make a left-handed hurler, for he was always clever at throwing with his left and used to amuse the fans, when working out, by shooting them through with his fork hand.

In 1886, Corcoran signed with a Southern league club in order to practice left-handed pitching. In spring workout Larry labored hard to gain control, for he had developed rare speed and didn't do badly in the few exhibition games he worked in.

After hurling a few games in the regular season Corcoran kinked his left arm, so that he had to give up. Larry had to quit pitching, for he had run out of pitching arms.

Tony Mullane was a big league hurler for nearly twenty years and a star of the first magnitude. Tony was very handy with his left, although a right-hander by nature. While in the big show he didn't attempt to use his left much, though occasionally Tony would toss through a left-handed curve.

When the great Mullane crossed the crest of his career he began pitching for the St. Paul club of the old Western league when Charlie Comiskey was manager and owner. In games against Detroit back in 1897, Mullane pitched with his left hand and came through with a fair degree of success during the nine innings he pitched that game.

CYRIL COAFFEE

Cyril Coaffee, twenty-six-year-old 153-pound track star, formerly of Winnipeg, Canada, who has moved to Chicago to make that city his home. Coaffee holds with Charlie Paddock, jointly, the world's 100-yard record, 0:09 3-5. Coaffee holds several other speed records.

Plans for Memorial for Rube Waddell

Plans for a memorial over the grave of Rube Waddell, one of baseball's greatest of all time, have been completed, and a monument costing $500 has been selected to mark the site where the famous athlete lies buried at San Antonio, Tex. The matter is in charge of President Benson, of the San Antonio club, who has appealed to the presidents of the two major and the larger minors for contributions.

Tom Keady Is Coach in Various College Sports

Probably there is no coach in the college world with as many institutions dependent upon his ability as Tom Keady, who has just signed to instruct the baseball nine at Fordham. In addition to his new alliance with the Maroon, Keady holds a football contract with the University of Vermont and a minor sports teaching job at Lehigh.

Cleveland Strong for Professional Cage Game

Basketball has grown to such popularity in the Mid-West that plans already are under consideration for the formation of a league of professional teams, with Cleveland and Detroit slated for membership. The game has developed such a following in Cleveland that 24,000 persons paid to witness two professional teams in action in one afternoon and one evening game.

As to Poetry.

Poetry is not made out of the understanding. The question of common sense is always: "What is it good for?" a question which would abolish the rose, and be triumphantly answered by the cabbage.—J. R. Lowell.

Need Code of Ethics.

A moral issue is a fight with one's own self. We come into life with many instincts. They are our animal heritage. Men is a good animal, and knows how to preserve and perpetuate his life with little external training. But in recent ages we have made great upward advances, and our modes of life have completely outstripped our instincts. Your inherited habits will no longer suffice to guide your conduct in civilized life; you need a code of ethics as well. The choice between ethical principles makes a moral issue. Is this wrong or is that wrong? And when you judge between right and wrong you are always considering your actions in the light of the future.

Coconuts Weighing 40 Pounds.

The "coco de mer," a variety of coconut which made famous the islands of the Seychelles archipelago in the Indian ocean, weighs 40 pounds or more, requires seven years to ripen and grows on trees that attain a height of 100 feet and do not show their enormous fernlike leaves until thirty-five years old, says the Detroit News. This "coconut of the sea" was known long before the islands were discovered, because of the seaborne specimens cast up on the east coast of Africa, where they were thought to grow on a submarine palm. They were valued as an antidote to poisons and commanded exorbitant prices among the native tribes, whose medicine men made much of them.

The labor shortage is chiefly in skilled trades. It does not appear that a loosening of the immigration laws would help materially in this particular, for most of the immigrants are unskilled, and even if skilled laborers should come in, there is no assurance that they would be given union cards and permitted to work.

The roast beef of old England, so long a national institution, is being heavily bombarded by certain medical specialists of that country. Dr. Webb Johnson says a heavy meat diet nourishes the cave-man instinct, citing a wife beater who became a lamb-like husband when served with half a pound of meat once a day in place of a pound three times a day. And Dr. Josiah Oldfield says meat-eating is barbarous, while "fruit-eating is the diet of the artistic, cultured and humane." Three pounds of meat a day is madness, of course, but how does it happen that the Japanese soldiers can fight like demons on a diet of rice only.

DILL'S PICKLE.

Senator C. C. Dill, elected to the Upper House of Congress from the State of Washington, recently delivered an address in which, among other things, he scored "methods by which railroads are permitted six per cent returns upon $19,000,000,000 in stock which is worth ten or eleven billions." In true Democratic form, Senator Dill presents statements which do not conform with fact. Under the Transportation Act the railroads are not permitted a return upon the value of stock but upon the value of the property actually used in railroad transportation. The law specifically provides that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall fix rates on such a basis and to permit, if possible, the earning of a reasonable return upon the actual value of the property. The law was expressly thus worded in order to avoid even by inference giving sanction to the earning of returns on watered stock. Under the LaFollette law the actual value of the property of the railroad was ascertained by the Interstate Commerce Commission and it is upon that valuation that rates are now fixed.

But aside from this misrepresentation on the part of Senator Dill he makes a further misstatement of fact when he says that the railroads are permitted a six per cent return. The facts, as disclosed by the records are that the railroads have not made any such return as that nor anywhere near it. Many railroads are not even earning their operating expenses and many more are not earning their operating expenses and their fixed charges combined. There is an immense mileage of railroads in the country not paying a dollar of dividends on stock.

In addition to these two direct misstatements of fact Senator Dill endeavors to convey an incorrect inference when he says that the stocks of the railroads are worth only ten or eleven billions. The only reason why the stocks of the railroads are worth only ten or eleven billions in the market is because government regulation has so limited the earnings of the railroads that men are not willing to pay more than ten or eleven billions for the securities of railroads, although the tangible property is worth $19,000,000,000. The value of a railroad depends upon its earning power. The railroads have property that represents an investment and a present reproduction value of $19,000,000,000. Because the roads are not permitted to earn a fair return on that investment, men who have money to invest are willing to pay only ten or eleven billions for the property.

According to Senator Dill's line of reasoning, the government should further restrict the earnings of railroads because their stocks are worth only ten or eleven billions in the market today. If rates were further decreased, stocks would be worth even less money, probably $5,000,000,000, and this decreased market value of the stocks of the railroads would, according to Dill's theory, justify a further decrease in railroad rates which would probably wipe out the market value of the stocks entirely.

What Mr. Dill proposes is practically a system of confiscation. While the system he proposes is not so drastic as that which was pursued in Russia by the Bolshevist government, it would be practically the same in its ultimate effects. Theft is theft by whatever other name you may call it.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Do alligators and crocodiles eat people?

2. I saw quantities of little birds fluttering in a tree (think they were warblers) and none to speak of anywhere else in the neighborhood. Why?

3. Is it true that the gypsy moth is being cured by letting some bug fight it?

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Can turtles generally close up their shells?

They vary; the box tortoise has the under shell or plastron in two parts connected by an elastic hinge of cartilage, and in this case, the two halves of the plastron can be shoved outward till they meet the upper shell or carapace. There is a difference even among these tortoises in the completeness of the closing. The general run of turtles close rather incompletely. In the common musk turtle the plastron moves, but is too small to make a good "lid"; common mud turtles close very well.

2. Is there any real nutriment in lettuce?

It has food value, due to the mineral elements its leaves absorb from the air and soil. These are necessary to the human system; but of course lettuce does not supply the same fats, starch, or protein most foods do. "Green" food should be eaten to piece out the diet and lettuce is excellent this way.

3. Was there ever such a thing as the roc's egg mentioned in Arabian Nights?

The dictionary gives roc as the "fabulous mythical bird of Arabia" and in the sense of the Tales, the bird is an invention. However, some basis for the roc's egg fable is thought to rest on the discovery of a huge bird of Madagascar, Aepiornis maximus, now extinct, whose eggs were almost a yard in circumference and able to contain 2 gallons. The story of its discovery is that Madagascar natives came to Mauritius bringing the shells for rum containers; and their size provoked scientific investigation.

SHOULD HAVE MASONIC TEMPLE

Kingston Needs Structure Similar to That in Other Cities Said Grand Master Arthur S. Tompkins in Course of Address to Masons Friday Evening in Fair Street Reformed Church.

Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins of Nyack, Grand Master of the Masonic Order in the state of New York, was greeted by over a thousand Master Masons of the Greene-Ulster Masonic District, Friday evening when he delivered an inspiring address on the aims and principles of Masonry at a district meeting held in the Fair Street Reformed Church.

In the course of his address Grand Master Tompkins said that what Kingston needed was a Masonic Temple. "Not a business block with stores on the first floor," said he "but a building whose architectural design was such that all who saw it would know it was a Masonic Temple, erected and maintained for Masonic purposes only." His remarks were greeted with hearty and prolonged applause.

The history of our country was closely interwoven with that of Masonry. From the early days of the colonies many of the most famous men in the country were Master Masons. General Washington was a Mason and so were many of his generals. The greater number of the signers of the Declaration of Independence were Masons. From the days of Washington to Harding the majority of the men who have served our country as president have been Master Masons.

A Mason had a right to be proud of the history and tradition of the organization which today was the strongest in the world. In New York state there were 300,000 Master Masons, and in the United States three millions.

Masonry was founded on the belief of "The Fatherhood of God, and the Brotherhood of Man." Masonry stod for the upholding of our government, of the maintenance of law and order, and against those who would stir up class or creed hatred. Masonry was opposed to any organization that had for its purpose the fanning of the flames of religious bigotry. A Master Mason believed in religious tolerance and that every man had the right to worship God as the dictates of his conscience prompted. The Master Mason believed in upholding the constitution of our country, and stood back of our public school system. Masonry stood for the keeping of the American Sabbath, American institutions and American ideals.

Master Masons believed in the American form of government, which they had such a large share in forming, and love of country and patriotic devotion to its principles animated Free Masonry.

A Master Mason had the right to feel proud of the part Masonry had played in the building up of the United States into the foremost world power. Today the Masonic order was the strongest order in all the world. Its growth in the past few years had been marvelous and this in spite of the fact that Masonry did not solicit members nor did it ever conduct a membership campaign.

Masonry was founded on the Bible, and sought to inculcate its principles. Belief in God was the rock on which Masonry was established.

One of the great principles of Masonry was charity and benevolence. It should ever stand ready to assist any worthy cause.

Grand Master Tompkins called attention to the work being caried on the Masonic order in New York state in establishing the great Masonic Home in Utica and the founding of the Soldiers and Sailors Hospital there which had cost over a million dollars, all of which was paid. The order was now promoting a plan to purchase 2,500 acres of land at Saranac Lake to establish a free tuberculosis hospital for Master Masons and their families.

Preceding the district meeting the grand master was entertained at a dinner in the chapel of the church and at its close held a brief reception to meet past and present lodge officers of the district. The arrangements for the district meeting were in charge of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M.

At the close of the district meeting a buffet lunch was served in the chapel.

—An Aid to Advertisers Both Local and National

THE Audit Bureau of Circulations is an Association of publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies who are co-operating to standardize and verify circulation data, and thus place the buying of space on a basis of "Known Value."

The Bureau was established in 1914 and now numbers among its members the majority of the leaders in the publishing and advertising fields of the United States and Canada.

Twice a year the publisher makes a report to the Bureau showing total circulation and details of distribution by states, cities, towns, suburbs and rural districts; also subscription rates and facts about contests, premiums and club offers. Once a year these statements are audited by one of the Bureau's experts.

The publisher-members agree to permit examination by the Auditor of all records considered necessary by the Bureau.

By means of the A. B. C. audit reports, which are issued on all member-publications, the advertiser can analyze the circulation of a paper and determine its value to him as an advertising medium.

By patronizing A. B. C. papers, advertisers guard their own interests and also participate in this nation-wide movement to place advertising on a sound, business-like basis.

The Kingston Daily Freeman is a member of the A.B.C. and would be pleased to submit a copy of the latest circulation report.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS DEBATING TROPHY

This Year's Team Repeats Achievement of Last Year's When Judges Award Them the Verdict at Newburgh.

For the second time in the history of the school, the Kingston High School has won the debating trophy. For a long time, the debating work at the school was unsuccessful as far as the winning of debates was concerned. Then, two years ago, Kingston started out by beating Poughkeepsie, but in turn lost to Schenectady. Last year the team made a clean sweep, and brought the first debating cup to the school. This year's team has accomplished the same thing. After having won a three-to-nothing decision over Poughkeepsie in the semi-finals, they travelled to Newburgh Friday evening and convinced two of the three judges that they were the better team. Kingston this year has as good a team as ever was put out at the school; every man has the qualities of a debater, and every man put those qualities to use. Newburgh Academy has a team that they can be well proud of, despite their losing the final contest. They were workers, for their arguments were sound, well-worked out, and they were prepared to take a slap at all the points the negative might bring up. It can be said without exaggeration that their oratory was excellent. The aggressiveness with which the speakers faced their audience, the free flow of their speech, their good expression, all pointed out ability, work and some excellent coaching. The delivery of the team, as a whole, ever overshadowed that of the local team. They certainly put up a good fight, and deserved the one vote they got. It was in the material and form of argument that the locals surpassed their opponents. Their statements were concise, their developments clear, and their conclusions the inevitable. Kingston showed up strong in rebuttal. The Newburgh lads had an excellent rebuttal also, but they failed to strike the death blow to the vital spot in the arguments of the locals, the debt-funding plan, offered instead of cancellation.

Newburgh, defending the affirmative of the proposal that the United States cancel 50 per cent of the allied war debts, spoke first in direct speech. Andrew J. Werkert, their first speaker, aimed to prove that Europe is unable to pay, but that entire cancellation would prove disastrous to the debtor countries. He took the countries separately, giving equal consideration to all. He eliminated the objections and left Europe standing in a serious plight of unemployment, with a lower standard of living, and with no production, as a result of their being forced to pay these debts.

J. Solomon Roodney, of Kingston, followed Mr. Werkert, and took up the moral side of payment. He struck at the statement that the war was a common cause, maintaining that the many actions of the Allies indicated otherwise. Europe, he claimed, is just trying to help itself, and only helps when there is gain for her. The United States received nothing from the war, while European nations got colonial possessions. The proposed cancellation would but shift the burden from Europe's shoulder to those of the American people. The United States, then, is like a bank, with Europe a debtor. As much as the president of the bank would like to cancel the loan to help his creditor, he cannot, for he has obligations to meet with his stockholders. The American government must meet its obligations to its stockholders, its taxpayers.

Charles L. Kades took up the benefits of cancellation to us. It proved beneficial in the case of the Boxer indemnity from China. It would prove beneficial now. Collection would ruin our trade, for the Europeans would not have the money to buy, the goods would be shipped back here to be sold at much lower rates than the ordinary, and consequently flooding of the markets and a slump in business would result. Even now our exports are decreasing, and if the best customer in the world were cut off, our foreign trade would be killed, including not only manufactured goods, but agricultural products. We can help Europe and ourselves at the same time by cancelling these debts.

R. Westbrook Stelle was then introduced. His argument was that cancellation would not relieve, but augment the bad conditions in Europe. He likened the debts to a log jam. Removal of one log from the top would aid in no way. They must strike the king log, and that in this case is reparations. The countries of Europe are depending upon the collection of the reparations. If they get their reparations, they can pay us. They can and should get the reparations, for Germany is well on the road to prosperity, and is able to pay. Cancellation would ruin Europe's credit, for it would indicate a lack of confidence in the debtor countries. Cancellation, therefore, would not be a friendly act, but a hindrance to the ones we want to befriend. It would not relieve, but make greater the financial crisis.

The last speaker for the affirmative was Newburgh Academy's "favorite son," Isaac H. McKeavor, the famous star of the Yellow and Blue football team. "Ike" showed that he is as much at home on the stage as on the gridiron. He dealt with the moral question. He pointed out that the war was not one continued giving for this country. The money loaned to the Allies was spent here. The profits are here. Scripture tells that much is demanded of the one who has much and also that as we measure, so shall it be measured unto us. How are we to measure? We are the richest country in the world. The conflict was a common cause, and the loans were really contributions. The people of this country would have gladly given if it would have saved a life. The money did, in hastening the end of the war, save many lives. The peoples of Europe look to America with confidence that they will here get help. America should set the example for better feeling between the nations by giving this bit.

Kingston's last speaker was also a favorite son, W. Farinacci Corregan. Corregan said that the Allies must have credit, or they will have no chance for trade. We should not ruin their credit by showing in cancelling their debts that we have no faith in them. We should rather arrange to help them return the money in a way that will give them a chance to get back on their feet. This way is found in the Hughes Funding Plan, which calls for regular payment, but gives the debtor nations a chance to rebuild their business, as it demands collection by the end of sixty odd years. This is the statesmanlike plan, carrying with it all the benefits, and none of the evils of cancellation.

The order of speakers for refutation was the same. Kingston spoke first in refutation.

The teams were: Newburgh Academy, Andrew J. Werkert, Charles L. Kades, and Isaac H. McKeavor, speakers, and Gerow Crowell, alternate. Kingston High School, J. Solomon Roodney, R. Westbrook Stelle, W. Farinacci Corregan, speakers, and Isaac Reuben, alternate.

The judges were Professor Benedict, superintendent of schools at Walden, Miss Gidday, teacher of English at New Paltz Normal, and Dr. Horner, dean of Albany Teacher's College.

The Rev. Seymour Purdy acted as chairman, and added no small amount of friendly feeling to the affair with his pleasant manner.

A number of rooters from Kingston were present at the debate. During the intermission there was considerable cheering by these rooters, and also by the Newburgh student body.

ANOTHER ISSUE OF ULSTER GAZETTE

Bids Fair to Make a Lot More People Think They Have Original Copy of Ancient Kingston Paper—Is Part of Legion Post's Americanization Work.

Goad-Ballinger Post No. 69, American Legion of Springfield, Mo., has an elaborate plan whereby the issue of the Ulster County Gazette of January 4, 1800, will again be reprinted and sold all over the country, the proceeds to be used in Americanization work, and thus in years to come there will be another outcrop of "originals" which may be found in family trunks and family Bibles and a few years hence along about the first of January there will be a flood of inquiries as to the value of the paper which the owner will believe to be one of the originals published by Samuel Freer & Son.

This much copied issue of the Gazette contains the story of the funeral of George Washington. Out of respect to his memory the column rules were turned so as to give a "mourning border." So far as is known there is but one original copy in existence. This was for years in Eden Musee in New York city, but the original has been re-printed and copies in several instances. The first re-print was in 1846 or 1847, when during a local celebration in Kingston there was a reprint made by a local printer. This edition, however, was not widely sold. In 1876, at the time of the centennial exposition at Philadelphia, a New York printer issued a second fac-simile edition of a million copies and it was sold for five cents at the exposition and all over the United States. In the early 80's, the stereotype plates were again used and after passing through several hands were offered for sale in "Printer's Ink" some years ago. "Back Number Budd," a man who resided on Long Island and whose business was supplying back number copies of newspapers, issued an edition which bore a copyright notice. However, several of these papers bearing the copyright have been received by The Freeman as originals. The plates were last in possession of a Washington curio dealer who sold copies of the paper at 10 cents each.

In the re-print editions, paper which had been "aged" was used, giving the appearance of age and this evidently is what deceives so many who believe that they have originals.

Now the Springfield, Mo., people are planning to duplicate the edition and circulate it all over the United States so that in years to come there will be a new crop of "originals."

DONT'S

DON'T use furniture polishes, oils or varnishes on upholstery leather. They will cause it to become sticky and to lose its lustre. When leather is in need of cleaning, use a damp cloth and a little castile soap. Rinse with another damp cloth and dry with a clean dry cloth—returning the original lustre by rubbing briskly.

Don't forget that moths will lay eggs under slip covers. When using them, remove them occasionally and brush the furniture as directed on page 3.

Don't use a carpet beater on upholstered furniture. The frequent use of the vacuum cleaner and the whisk broom will serve to remove all objectionable dust.

Don't fail to remove the loose cushions occasionally and run the hand in the space between the seat and the back. The usual collection of keys, coins, pencils, etc., that this practice will divulge will do the furniture no harm, but one often finds foodstuffs that are subject to decay.

Don't sit on spring arms, stand or kneel on spring edge seats. Although this practice will show little effect on a well-built piece of furniture, it constitutes an abuse and should be avoided.

Don't use the vacuum cleaner on down-filled cushions, as it has a tendency to pull the feathers through the covering. A careful brushing will suffice.

Don't allow household pets to lie on upholstered furniture. They may not only soil it, but cats, especially, will ruin the cover with their clawing.

Use a Eureka Vacuum Cleaner Electric.

BOARD JUSTIFIES PAY OF TEACHERS

President Flemming Presents Figures to Show That Kingston Is Not at Foot of List Among State Cities—Salaries Have Increased Faster Here Than Average Throughout United States.

The reasons which led the board of education to adopt the report of the teachers' committee at the meeting a month ago by which the salaries of city teachers were increased in accordance with the schedule of salaries then in effect were embodied in a statement prepared by President Harry H. Flemming, who read it for the information of the visiting delegations and the public after the various delegation-spokesmen had concluded their speeches at Friday night's meeting of the education board.

The arguments advanced in favor of granting the wage increases asked by some of the city teachers appear elsewhere in The Freeman, as do the routine proceedings of the board.

President Flemming said he desired to bring these facts to the attention of those present because it had been said that the board had made no comprehensive reply to the advocates of increased salaries requested by some of the teachers, and the opinion had been scattered about town that Kingston teachers were paid the smallest wages of any city in the state.

He desired to bring these facts to their attention, he said, in order that the delegations present might see in what light the board had viewed conditions. There was no difference between the board and the delegations personally, but there was in the matter of judgment as to what should be done.

President Flemming's statement was as follows:

So many and conflicting statements have been made concerning the schedule of salaries of teachers in this and other cities that a brief review of the matter covering a period of approximately six years last past will be of assistance in helping the average person who is desirous of obtaining a correct opinion of the question in controversy.

In 1917, the minimum salary for grade school teachers in the city of Kingston was $550 and the maximum $775. The difference between the minimum and maximum was approached by annual increments of $25 each. The minimum salary of high school teachers, women, was $750 and the maximum $1,000. There was but one man employed in the high school teaching force at this time. The annual increments in each instance were, for women $50, for men $50.

In 1918, the question of increased salaries was discussed throughout the state. A conference of the school superintendents, third class cities, and representatives from the board of education, was held at Albany. The meeting appointed a committee of three to look into the whole matter and report back to the conference. The committee consisted of the superintendent of schools of Amsterdam, Harrison T. Morrill, the superintendent of schools of Glens Falls, Elbert W. Griffith, and the speaker. Request was made upon the superintendents of all third class cities for detailed information concerning schedule of salaries then in effect.

The committee prepared two schedules, designated as Schedule "A" and Schedule "B," which represented the views of school authorities in 3rd class cities in different sections of the state, and requested the representatives of the various Boards of Education charged with the duty of formulating the salary schedules, to work out a tentative schedule and before taking final action, to submit a copy to the State Department of Education. The department in turn conferred with the committee prior to a second meeting of the conference.

As a result of the conferences held, schedules were adopted by the various 3rd class cities, in many instances using the proposed schedules as a working basis and making such changes as might be necessary to meet local conditions.

Schedule "A" fixed the minimum salary of elementary school teachers at $720, with 8 increments of $40 each, making a maximum of $1,060. The minimum salary of high school teachers, women, at $840, with 8 increments of $50 each, maximum $1,240. The minimum salary of high school teachers, men, at $1,400, with 8 increments of $50 each, maximum $1,800.

Schedule "B" fixed the minimum salary for elementary school teachers at $720, with 8 increments of $40 each, and for the seventh and eighth grade, $100 additional. The minimum salary of female high school teachers was fixed at $840, with 8 annual increments of $50 each, and the minimum salary of male high school teachers was fixed at $1,200, with 8 annual increments of $75 each.

This board worked out a schedule, using the proposed schedules as a basis, which remained in effect until 1921, when the legislature of this state fixed the minimum salary for grade school teachers at $1,000. The board then adopted a new schedule, under which the minimum for grade school teachers was $1,000, the maximum $1,400, and there were 8 annual increments of $50 each. The minimum salary for high school teachers, women, was fixed at $1,150, with 8 annual increments of $75 each, the maximum $1,750. The minimum salary for high school teachers, men, $1,400, with 8 annual increments of $75 each, maximum $2,000.

When this schedule was under consideration, the grade school teachers of the city appointed a committee to confer with the Teachers' Committee as to the method of putting this schedule in operation. It was claimed that there were certain teachers of longer experience than others who should be accorded special consideration. The committee requested the representatives of the grade school teachers to submit to them their proposal in writing, which was done, and the proposition so submitted was adopted by the committee and reported to the board and approved by the board with change.

Under the plan thus adopted, the teachers did not all start with the minimum salary of $1,000. Certain increases above that sum were given to the teachers, based upon their period of service. This accounts for the fact that the schedule adopted for 1923-24 fixes the salary of some grade school teachers at $1,200, and certain others at $1,270, and at rates between the latter and $1,050. The new teachers coming into the service are started at $1,000.

The present discussion grew out of an application made to the board by certain teachers who had been in the service for 15 years and over, to increase their compensation to the maximum. The teachers' committee, after considering the matter, reported to the board in substance to the effect that, in the opinion of the committee, nothing had occurred since the adoption of the schedule in 1921, which justified the departure from the plan therein provided for, and that the request to advance to the maximum, the teachers of 15 years' experience or over, would work such a radical change in the schedule as to make it inoperative and that such action at this time was not justified. The board adopted the report of the committee.

The average mind will realize that in a city the size of Kingston with eight grade schools and a high school, with approximately 130 teachers, it is quite necessary that some well defined systematic plan for compensation of the teachers which provides for an unusual increase should be established, and that having been once established, with no extraordinary change of conditions, a period of two years in operation is but a very short period indeed, and that to change a schedule radically every year or two years, must necessarily mean the abandonment in its entirety, of any well-defined plan, and the adoption of a method which might reasonably be characterized as a haphazard administration of the affairs of the school system.

A tabulation of salaries for third class cities was made and has been extensively circulated throughout the city. The party responsible for the tabulation is evidently one who is connected with school affairs in some other city and gained the information by a questionnaire sent out to the school officials of third class cities. A careful analysis of the figures set forth must lead to the conclusion that the facts stated are so meagre and the errors so numerous that a correct conclusion cannot be arrived at, and the compilation is well nigh worthless. As an example:

Under grade school teachers:

Batavia—Salary for 1923-24 listed at $1,475; should be $1,400.

Kingston—Salary for 1923-24 listed at $1,270; should be $1,300.

Little Falls—Salary for 1923-24 listed at $1,400, should be $1,100.

Middletown—Salary for 1923-24 listed at $1,400; should be $1,100.

High school women:

Kingston—Salary for 1923-24 listed at $1,675; should be $1,725.

Lackawanna—Salary for 1923-24 listed at $2,400; should be $2,170.

Little Falls—Salary for 1923-24 listed at $1,620; should be $1,610.

High school men:

Fulton—Salary for 1923-24 listed at $2,400; should be $2,300.

Lackawanna—Salary for 1923-24 listed at $2,100; should be $2,400.

Rome—Salary for 1923-24 listed at $2,250; should be $2,350.

Tonawanda—Salary for 1923-24 listed at $2,075, should be $2,050.

The only way an intelligent comparison of salaries in any given city with that of another can be made is by obtaining the complete schedules of the cities it is desired to compare and get the details and the manner in which they are applied.

The character of these figures was explained to a committee of the Federated Parent-Teacher Association by the speaker, who also gave the same facts to a committee from the Rotary Club. Nevertheless the schedule was furnished to our daily papers and published and has been extensively quoted.

It was on Thursday, the 19th of April, that the speaker discussed this subject with a committee from the Rotary Club and one of the members of the committee, immediately following, appeared before the Kiwanis Club, and if he was correctly quoted in the daily press, made the following statement: I quote from an article in the Kingston Daily Freeman of Thursday, the 19th inst.:

"There were 58 teachers here of 15 years or more service now receiving approximately $1,000 yearly in the grade schools and $1,175 in the high school who desired to receive the eight annual increments provided under the Lockwood law, enacted in 1920."

The facts are, with reference to the schedule of salaries for 1923-24 adopted by this board at its last monthly meeting, that the teachers referred to in the grade schools are, with few exceptions, receiving from $1,225 to $1,300, and the teachers referred to in the high school, from $1,675 to $1,725. The difference between $1,000 and $1,300 and the difference between $1,175 and $1,725 is no inconsiderable sum.

In making this reference we do not charge anyone with willfully or intentionally misquoting facts.

As bearing upon a comparison of this schedule in force in Kingston with that of other cities, the New York State Bureau of Municipal Information has obtained and published certain information on this subject, under date of April 4, 1923, report No. 592, we quote the figures set forth in this report covering all of the cities from which the bureau obtained information and included in its report:

We believe these figures to be reliable and by reference thereto it will be found that Kingston is not at the foot of the list and does not carry the lowest schedule of any city in the state. It will be noted that the Kingston schedule for 1923-24 will pay as high as $1,300 to grade school teachers, whereas Binghamton, with a population of 66,800, is paying for the same year but $1,100, and that Middletown is paying $1,100 and Little Falls $1,100. The high school teachers-women: Kingston is paying as high as $1,725, Binghamton $1,700 and Watertown, Oswego, Batavia, Fulton and Little Falls, all $1,700 or under. High school teachers-men: Kingston is paying $2,000, Binghamton $1,700, Batavia and Oswego $2,000 and under. Newburgh and Poughkeepsie, nearby cities, are not covered by the report of the bureau. Newburgh, we understand, has a maximum for grade school teachers of $1,470, whereas the Kingston maximum is $1,400. We are not advised as to the details of the Poughkeepsie schedule.

A careful review of the report of the bureau above referred to will carry the conclusion that Kingston is not properly classed by some who have been stating and reiterating the statement that the Kingston teachers were the poorest paid teachers in any city of the state, and when compared with a city the size of Binghamton, surely no such unjust criticism is called for.

In 1917 the total amount of the schedule reported by the Teachers' Committee for the year ending July 31, 1918 was $91,175.

In 1918, for the year ending July 31, 1919 $94,475.

In 1919, for the year ending July 31, 1920—$100,025.

In 1920, for the year ending July 31, 1921—$139,130.

In 1921, for the year ending July 31, 1922—$145,520.

In 1922, for the year ending July 31, 1923—$152,920.

In 1923, for the year ending July 31, 1924—approximately $160,000.

In the report of survey as made to the Chamber of Commerce and published in our daily papers on the 26th inst., we note that inquiry was made by members present of President Wilson and that for the year 1920, the last year to which figures he had access, the average teachers' wage for Kingston was $909, while the average in the United States was $1,154. The increase in teachers' wages in the United States since 1913 was 61 per cent. We do not know why those in charge of the survey did not have access to the figures for 1921, 1922 and 1923. By using their percentage of increase, however, and applying it to the schedule rates of 1917 as compared with 1923-24, we find that the minimum rate for grade school teachers has increased slightly in excess of 80 per cent and the maximum rate for grade school teachers has increased approximately 83 per cent. The minimum for high school women 1917-17 compared with 1923-24 has increased 55 per cent, while the maximum has increased 72 per cent. Then making the same comparison between the aggregate salaries for 1917-18 with 1923-24 we find an increase of 75 per cent. You will find that Kingston is not obliged to go back to 1913 in order to cover the percentage of increase but has covered it between the years 1917 and 1923-24, and is considerable in excess of the average percentage of increase.

EDUCATION BOARD ROUTINE MATTERS

Audits Pay Rolls and Bills, Will Beautify High School Grounds and Transacts Other Business.

Except for the discussion on the question of increasing the salaries of some of the city teachers, a full discussion of both sides of which question will be found elsewhere in The Freeman, only routine business was transacted by the board of education at its regular monthly meeting Friday night.

Junior Dance May 25.

A request from the Junior Class of the high school for the use of the high school gymnasium for a dance on May 25 was granted, and Trustees Betz and Thompson were appointed chaperons for the evening.

Mendelssohn Club Concert May 23.

A request was received from the Mendelssohn Club for the use of the high school auditorium for its twentieth annual concert on Wednesday evening, May 23, subject to the usual condition. The concert is entirely complimentary in character. On motion of Trustee Thompson, the request granted.

Pay Roll and Bills Audited.

The finance committee reported the April pay roll, amounting to $20,289.84, and audited bills amounting to $1,948.96, which were ordered paid. Trustee Brinnier voting in the negative on both motions.

Buy Supplies as Needed.

The supply committee reported a resolution authorizing the committee to buy janitors' supplies as needed, such supplies covering a wide variety but aggregating a small amount and the committee considering it could best buy them in the open market. The resolution was adopted, Trustee Brinnier voting in the negative.

School Walk Now Safe.

The building committee reported that the school walk at School No. 1 was in dangerous condition and the committee had directed Superintendent Michael to have a new walk placed there. Superintendent Michael reported that until such time, he had had the holes filled and the walk made safe.

Girls to Exercise Outdoors.

Superintendent Michael reported a requisition for twelve outdoor balls and six bats, together with one score book, all of which are to be used by the girls in outdoor exercise instead of gymnasium exercise, at a total cost of $18.74, and the matter was referred to the supply committee with power.

Gradually Beautify School Grounds.

Superintendent Michael said the board ought to adopt a policy by which the beautiful high school grounds could be further beautified by shrubbery or ornamental trees. The terrace had settled in places, exposing the water table, which needed immediate filling-in.

He would not by any means spoil the lawn by trees or shrubbery, or shut off the view of the school, but there were several places where shrubbery and ornamental trees could be used to good advantage, at a cost of from $50 to $100 a year.

Trustee Brinnier said he was opposed to trees or shrubs as nothing was as handsome as a handsome lawn, and when mayor he had had the high stone wall in front of the city hall cut down so the building could be seen. The matter was referred to the superintendent and Trustees Betz and Thompson with power, Trustee Brinnier voting against it.

The board then adjourned.

Superintendent Michael submitted the following report of attendance for the month of March:

79 MILLIONAIRES SUICIDES IN 1922

Report Shows 12,000 Persons Killed Themselves in U. S.

ONE-THIRD OF NUMBER WOMEN

Seventy-nine millionaires were among the 12,000 persons who committed suicide in 1922, it was reported by Dr. Harry M. Warren, president of the Save-a-Life league. One-third of those who killed themselves were women, the oldest was a great-great-grandmother, one hundred years old, and the youngest a child of five.

In New York city 880 persons killed themselves, and an increasing number threw themselves in front of subway trains and jumped from high buildings. Some parts of the country reported waves of suicides, and one girls' suicide club was discovered. Those who took their lives—about the same number as in the preceding year—included wealthy, socially prominent and highly educated persons. There were 38 college students, 50 college professors and school teachers, 19 preachers and leaders of religious work, 52 judges and lawyers, 84 physicians, 100 presidents and heads of large business concerns, and a number of bank presidents, one of whom tried ten times to die before succeeding.

Due to Trivial Causes.

"As usual, many have put a low estimate upon the value of human life, having destroyed themselves for causes most trivial," said Doctor Warren. "A girl did the act because she became depressed after bobbing her hair, a man because he was forced to quit playing golf. A woman killed herself after missing two trains, a man because he feared the end of the world was at hand, another because of a row over a cat. A designer was driven to suicide trying to guess the coming spring styles for women. One recently ended his life rather than face another cold winter. A young man killed himself 'for the fun of it.' And another left a note saying she was taking poison 'just to get a new thrill.'

"The suicide of children is a matter particularly distressing, and a most serious problem, to be carefully considered. In 1919 we reported 477 child suicides. In 1920 there were 797. In 1921 the number had increased to 858. In 1922 there were over 900, or nearly 3,000 in four years. The average age of boy suicides is sixteen, girls, fifteen. Most girls use poison; the boys use a gun. When five school girls in four days commit suicide it is time the public asked the reason why. The conclusion reached probably will be that they were temporarily disordered, or home conditions were intolerable, or that the school system was at fault. All three are the chief causes for child suicide.

"Child marriage is another serious cause. In 1920 there were 1,600 boys and 12,000 girls fifteen years of age in the United States listed as married, and nearly 500 of them were recorded as widowed or divorced. The married boys of sixteen numbered 3,222. Those of seventeen numbered 7,690, those of eighteen, 24,044. Girls who had married at sixteen numbered 41,020, at seventeen, 99,830, and those at eighteen, 186,645. Many of these children soon after marriage find that they have made a great mistake in their choice, quarrel, separate, get divorced and supply many of our suicides as well as homicides. Parents and teachers should educate children to avoid emotional excesses, to meet bravely the unpleasant things of life.

Prohibition to Blame in Part.

"The inability to procure customary alcoholic drinks and narcotic drugs helped to swell the total of unfortunates who died by their own hands. Perhaps nothing has given more real sorrow and humiliation than the suicide of so many of our soldier boys. These shell-shocked and disabled soldiers have given way to helpless despair, more than 1,000 having already committed suicide. This league has given special attention to such cases, and is proud of having saved not a few from their greatest battle.

"Dr. Thomas W. Salmon says that 'most suicides are preventable.' The league has proved that people tempted to end their lives will first come and talk it over, and that in most cases they can be saved. We have heard much about our duty to society and country, but we have forgotten our duty to those who at our very doors ended their lives for the lack of a helping hand when passing through life's greatest crisis. We do not need investigators. The facts are well known. Suicide causes fill our papers and usually without attracting the slightest attention. We need instant action."

MAKE CONTOUR MAP OF VAST OCEAN BED AREA

New Depth Finder Aid in Charting 34,000 Square Miles of Sea Bottom.

The first successful contour map of a deep-sea zone has been completed by the hydrographic office of the Navy department. It is a chart of the west coast of North America from San Francisco to Point Descanso, Mexico, constructed from soundings made by the naval ships Hull and Corry with the new sonic depth finder developed by Dr. H. C. Hayes of the experimental station of the department's bureau of engineering.

The chart represents the configuration of the ocean floor over a surveyed area of 34,000 square miles, showing submerged hills, valleys, cliffs and precipices.

The map, naval officers declares, will be of value to seismologists, geologists and oceanographers. It is expected to aid materially in the study of earthquake on the west coast since it makes available data from which zones of structural weakness in the earth's surface may be traced.

It was also said to indicate the location of "continental shelf," commonly thought of as representing the structural demarcation between a sinking ocean bed and a rising continent, and the new sounding device thus is believed to permit a more effective study of continent building than heretofore possible. With other instruments, it is thought, the depth finder can be used to determine the present condition of connections supposed to have existed in remote areas between bodies of land as now known, as well as give information about frequent earth changes in such regions as the Chilean coast and the Hawaiian islands.

FARM DEBT $7,857,700,000

More Than Tenth of Value of Property Owed on Mortgages.

More than one-tenth of the value of all farm lands and farm buildings of the country is owed on mortgage debt. In the first compilation of its kind ever made the census bureau and the Department of Agriculture jointly estimate the mortgage farm debt of the United States at $7,857,700,000 on January 1, 1920. The value of all farm lands and buildings at that time was $66,316,002,602.

Iowa, premier farming state of the country, had mortgage debts on its farms aggregating almost one-seventh of the country's total.

For Illinois the figures are: $502,850,000; Indiana, $206,600,000; Michigan, $215,750,000; Wisconsin, $455,470,000.

U. S. Farm Taxes Jump 215 Per Cent.

Taxes on American farm lands have increased about 215 per cent during the last eight years, according to reports from the Agricultural Department. Higher cost of state and local government and increased land prices following the World war are blamed for the taxation boost.

When her bed caught fire from a cigarette she was smoking, Mrs. Ruby Murray of Omaha, Neb., was burned to death. She fell asleep and when she awoke her clothing was ablaze. She died before medical aid could reach her.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Dainty Frock for the Tiny Girl.

4516. White lawn is here combined with dotted Swiss. This is a good model for chambray and gingham, also for silk and crepe. The model slips over the head. It will make a pretty party dress in mull, organdy or net.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes, 1, 2, 3 and 5 years. A 2 year size requires 1¾ yard of 32 inch material. To trim as illustrated requires ⅝ yard of contrasting material 40 inches wide.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps for our up-to-date spring and summer catalogue, containing 550 designs of Ladies' and Misses' and Children's Patterns, a concise and comprehensive articles on dressmaking also some points for the needle (illustrating 50 of the various, simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Odd Incident.

Just recently I went hunting. I had only gone a little way when I saw a rabbit and fired at him with my shotgun. There was a tremendous noise and for a while I couldn't hear or see a thing. Then I noticed that the gun barrel had disappeared and I was left holding the stock. Later I found the gun barrel, which was bent from the accident, lying in the weeds about ten feet from where I had been standing. I considered myself very lucky as I wasn't injured in any way.—Chicago Journal.

Fish Smothered by Ice.

Tons of fish were smothered in Glenmore lake, Orange county, New York, by the ice which covered the lake two feet thick from shore to shore. When the community found the water supply objectionable they investigated, and when a hole was cut through the ice thousands of dead fish came to the surface together with many live fish in search of air.

Many Tires Exported.

The available market for automobile tires outside the United States for 1923 is approximately 6,000,000 casings. Considering the rate at which American tires were exported the first ten months of 1922 it seems reasonable to suppose that the 1923 export figures will be about 1,350,000, or about 23 per cent of the total available.

QUAINT SPOTS IN NEW YORK

No one has ever explained satisfactorily why a little white frame house should be considered so much more romantic than a red brick or a gray stone house of the same size. The fact remains that whenever our enterprising creators of fiction want to provide the ideal setting for their simple country girl heroine they always put her in a little white frame house.

And in plays where the hero and heroine, after three acts of storm and trials, settle down in a little love nest, it is always in this type of a house.

Consequently, cliff dwellers have come to have a most romantic regard for this type of dwelling, and view the few remaining examples within the city limits with the same affectionate regard given to the old homestead. Strange as it may seem, excellent examples of this type of architecture exist within the heart of the city, and provide an interesting contrast to the towering buildings of our age.

Right in the heart of the roaring forties, just off Broadway, is a row of simple, two-storied frame dwellings, under the shadow of skyscrapers like ghosts of a vanished generation, says a writer in the New York Sun. When they go there will vanish a row of quaint book shops, tea shops, coffee houses and antique dealers.

That some of the members of this generation prefer quaintness to newness is proved by the fact that in the fashionable eighties, just off Fifth avenue, a little white wooden house boasting that rarity, for New York, a real front porch, and a real back yard, is still used as a residence. Its immaculate whiteness stands out sharply in contrast to the gloomy brownstone dwellings around it. It looks for all the world like a wedding cake in among some cold chocolate pudding.

Another example of the moving picture setting right in the midst of New York is found on the upper West side, just off Riverside drive. This little frame dwelling, in addition to wide porches and green blinds, boasts a real garden bounded by green hedges that are the envy of all the residents of the fashionable apartments that surround it.

That the quaintness is not unappreciated by the blase city dweller is proven by the frequency with which cameras are opened in front of these houses. Doubtless, many of these pictures are sent back home to the folks, just to prove that New York still has some real scenery.

Great Poets.

As to his glory, let time be challenged to declare whether the fame of any other institutor of human life be comparable to that of a poet. That he is the wisest, the happiest, and the best, inasmuch as he is a poet, is equally incontrovertible; the greatest poets have been men of the most spotless virtue, of the most consummate prudence, and, if we would look into the interior of their lives, the most fortunate of men; and the exceptions as they regard those who possessed the poetic faculty in a high yet inferior degree, will be found on consideration to confine rather than destroy the rule.—Sir Philip Sidney.

The Flapper on Art.

The Woman stood at the far end of a certain corridor in the Art institute, feasting her soul on the peace, beauty and symmetry of the Venus de Milo. Her solitude was broken by the click of brisk heels on the marble floor. Looking back, she perceived a comely young girl hastening toward the statue. Upon arrival the flapper viewed the master piece with an appraising glance; then looking toward the Woman she remarked laconically: "The Venus was some round-shouldered, wasn't she?" And, turning, she departed at the same rapid rate at which she had arrived.—Chicago Journal.

LAW BOOK IS 350 YEARS OLD

In neat rows in a little bookcase on the fourth floor of the Lucas county courthouse at Toledo, O., are some of the oldest law books in the United States. One of them is nearly 350 years of age, but all are well preserved.

Probably the most interesting volume in the collection was printed in 1577. Its title page reads: "In this volume are conteyned the statutes made and established from the time of Henry the Thirde, unto the first yeare of the reygne of Our Moste Gracious and Victorious Soveraigne Lord, King Henry the VIII."

Marg to Tell.

"Suttin' people in dis hyar worl' got a cinch," said Charcoal Eph, ruminatively, "but de trouble is, brother, yo'all never kin tell which job's de cinch by any man's testimony."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

to get more money.

Will Kingston's system of the cost of the best [illegible] to the Board.

How Some Received More

Mr. Ann Burger said that in the case of teachers receiving $1,000 or less.

Dr. Robert Denmuth said that in the discussion regarding the instructors made between principals and grade teachers, both were classified as grade teachers.

Superintendent Mitchell in answer to a question said that in 1921 the board had recognized the difficulty of getting teachers and had granted to them $50 more a year than the other grade teachers and eight grade teachers had been thus paid. The distinction was not recognized by the new schedule but it was not taken out so that their [illegible] number of grade teachers, but not [illegible] of the schedule.

Cheap Help Doesn't Pay

Trustee Plummer said to bring the matter to a head he would offer a resolution that the [illegible] be the board top to consider that carpenters, painters and [illegible] whose trade had had their wages increased twenty-five hundred per cent. Are of those who claim our children entitled to such some pay in Liberty? Is it moral Liberty the best [illegible] of Liberty?

It is the teachers [illegible] Mr. Plummer who [illegible] the child of the right principle [illegible] Their claims are proved by the kind of citizens we have. If the city should be efficient she should be prompted [illegible] to pay [illegible] cheap dominies, cheap lawyers or cheap men of any kind because they were the dearest in the end—the didn't know their business.

In the table read by President Denmuth said Mr. Bogert knew more than Mr. Plummer had seen [illegible] and not [illegible] like Poughkeepsie or Newburgh.

President Plummer replied he had taken the information furnished by the bureau which furnishes such information which he considered reliable.

You could have gotten the facts about Newburgh and Poughkeepsie by correspondence, said Mr. Brinnier.

There was nothing to prevent your doing it, the latter replied Mr. Plummer.

I'm not in your debt, said Mr. Brinnier. I'm under and not in this board. Why little education I have I got in the Kingston schools. I'm proud to say and my children have had their education there. I've been a member of the board of education for [illegible] years and you have never had the pleasure of [illegible] with me.

I have the pleasure.

Put in Mercantile Law Curriculum

Trustee Plummer moved that the [illegible] in the form of the [illegible] be adopted [illegible] the previous meeting be reconsidered.

Trustee Van Wagenen raised the point of order that Mr. Plummer could not move to reconsider the vote because he had voted against the adoption of the report. The point of order was sustained.

You're rich on your parliamentary law, said Mr. Plummer, I know it, but I want it to lose out.

Trustee Peyser said he personally was in favor of higher wages for the teachers.

You can't move to reconsider because you voted against the report of the last meeting, said Mr. Brinnier, but Mrs. Thompson can make my motion because she wasn't here.

Thus Mrs. Thompson said she too had voted against the report at the last meeting and therefore could not make the motion.

The salary question having been disposed of all the members of the visiting delegations except the women retired but he remained throughout the remainder of the session.

Other matters of business acted will be found in the Wednesday Freeman.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS

The "Fire Alarm" Excelsior Hose's thriller closes at Keeney's tonight. Starting Monday for three days John M. Stahl has made into a photoplay one of the boldest themes ever shown on the screen. "The Dangerous Age" Lewis Stone heads the big cast of stars.

"The Lights of New York," a big melodrama and Charles Ray in "A Tale of Two Cities" at the Opera House tonight. Monday William Farnum in his most lovable character, a he man sheriff in a western frontier town. "Without Compromise" and Billie Dove in "Youth to Youth," a snappy story of a good little bad girl are the big features at the Opera House for two days.

The farewell performance at the Auditorium tonight offers Hoot Gibson in "Single Handed," a wild west tale of action and thrills. A Century comedy is also programmed.

Dustin Farnum in "The Primal Law" and Roy Stewart in "Hearts of Oak" and six vaudeville acts is the bill offered at the Orpheum today, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday; one of the biggest pictures of the season will be shown, Pola Negri in her first American-made Paramount picture "Bella Donna" supported by an excellent cast of experienced players. The two leading men in the production are Conway Tearle and Conrad Nagel. Lois Wilson likewise is featured as leading woman. Claude King, Macey Harlam and Robert Schable complete the cast.

Family of Dwarfs.

Among the interesting accounts of dwarfs is that of Count Joseph Borcialski, who is said to have been "the son of well-formed parents of whom the first, third and fifth were dwarfs. Joseph, who wrote a history of his own life, records that his eldest brother was three feet six inches, then came Joseph himself, whose height at twenty was two feet ten inches and at thirty, three feet three inches. He was succeeded by three others, the middle one being a girl who died of smallpox, being then two feet two inches, but of admirable proportions. John Borcialski was very well proportioned, was married to a woman of ordinary size, who brought him several well-formed children, and died at Bank's cottage, near Durham, in 1837, at the age of ninety-eight a great age for an ordinary man, and without an example in the history of the dwarfs."

Of Biblical Origin?

The phrase, "at sixes and sevens," probably owes its origin to the Bible "six, yea seven" used in Hebrew to indicate an indefinite number, as in the Book of Job, chapter v, 19. It is also explained as denoting originally "the hazarding of one's fortune, or carelessness as to consequences. In later usage it means the existence of a confusion or disorder. The idiom was in use at the time of Chaucer and has been associated with an expression in dicing "to set all on cinque ace," these being the two highest numbers.—Literary Digest.

Why Hudson Owners Buy Hudsons Again and Again

Most Hudson owners remain Hudson owners. They find nothing to tempt them elsewhere. Some have owned five, ten, sixteen successive Hudsons.

They have found each succeeding Hudson a better, smoother, finer car.

Those who drive today's Super-Six call it the greatest Hudson ever built. Its price makes it conspicuous not only among cars of comparable fineness, but even among those that you never classify with Hudson in quality.
